1. LEER EL TÍTULO Y PREDECIR EL CONTENIDO DEL TEXTO

Cuando vamos a leer un texto lo primero que debemos hacer es, lógicamente, leer su título. En los textos informativos el título nos ayuda a saber y a predecir cuál será el tema que va a tratar. Una vez que sabemos el tema que tratará el texto estaremos en condiciones de formular algunas hipótesis sobre las ideas que aparecerán en el texto.

CATS IN CRISIS

'BIG CATS' IS THE NAME FOR TIGERS, LIONS, LEOPARDS AND JAGUARS, THE BIG CATS' ARE IN CRISIS.

Tigers live in many places in Asia-from very cold mountains in the Himalaya to very hot areas. They usually live in places without people, but people sometimes move into the tigers' areas. Tigers eat other animals. They hunt at night. In places without people, tigers also hunt in the day. They usually kill wild animals, but they sometimes kill domestic animals. Tigers are in crisis because people move into their areas and local people sometimes kill them.

Saksit Simcharoen Works at the Huai Kha Khaeng Wildlife Park in Thailand.

The park is a tiger conservation area.

It's a very good place for tigers.

About sixty tigers live there. Saksit

Works with 170 people in the park. He studies the park's tigers. Saksit goes into the forest at night. He doesn't see many tigers, but the park has 180

automatic cameras. They can take photos of tigers. Saksit checks the cameras. About eighth of the tigers in the park have radio collars. Every month Saksit writes reports about the tigers in the area and he has a meeting with his colleagues. Saksit loves his job

because the tigers in the park are not in crisis.
